“ They say it gets easier as the days pass. Right now, it doesn't feel that way. The days feel heavy, the clouds feel low, and the ache of missing my dad is always there.

My dad was a protector in every sense of the word. He loved his daughters fiercely and would be there in a heartbeat to protect us from anything or anyone. He talked to us every single day never missing a good morning, always wishing us a blessed day.

He helped us with anything we needed, whether it was advice around the house, tips for our vehicles so our partners could fix them, or showing up himself if they couldn't. He was always making jokes, always checking in, always making sure we didn't need anything.

He loved his grandkids with his whole heart and cherished every single one of them. He tried his best to treat us equally, so no one ever felt left out. That was just who he was thoughtful, fair, and full of love.

I'm so grateful he was able to be at my wedding, to see my children grow, and to be there when we needed him without hesitation.

He did everything he could for us financially, emotionally, and with endless love. He spent every minute he could with us, making each moment count. He gave the tightest hugs, told us how much he loved us, and how much he enjoyed being with us.

Overall, he was an amazing father. I will forever be grateful that he was mine. Until we meet again. I love you dad!

“ To dad,

I decided to pretend like i'm writing you a letter just to kinda let my emotions out, it's almost going to be a month since you were taken from us, since my world shattered from one call and i wish i could say with time that i'm doing better but truthfully no matter how much time passes im always going to be missing you and wished i was able to visit you one last time. I hadn't been able to see you in almost a year and i was just about to fly out to see you, it hurts my heart so much that when i lost my baby you were calling and checking in on me and more than anything i wish it was in person and you could just hold me and i just cry in your arms. For the longest time all i've been wanting and needing was my dad, but life gets the best of us. I won't have you at my wedding and more then anything I needed you there i've been dreaming of the father daughter dance since i was a toddler practically, to watch you be a grandpa to my kids, to watch me graduate again, i won't have that. I wanted to show you how grateful i was to have such an amazing loving dad, i wanted to show you where i'm living now, i wanted to help you get land, i wanted to be able to retire you one day, but that was taken from me, from us. life will never be the same without you but I'm going to keep striving for more in life just to make you proud, im going to ride your motorcycle until it gives out, and i'm going to tell my kids about their amazing loving protective grandpa. I love and miss you so much dad, till we meet again dad. 🥺❤️

“ I am my father’s 3rd daughter. As his daughter I can tell you everything I knew he was in my 24 years of life. My dad, Alfredo Ramon Rodriguez, was an amazing father. He cared and loved his girls so deeply. He always wanted a boy and kept trying but he got his girls instead. Even though he didn’t get what he wanted, he was thrilled with every girl he got. He didn’t get upset or angry when he found out his fifth daughter was a girl, he welcomed her so gratefully. He was like “another girl? That’s perfect. I love my girls.” And that he did. His love ran so deep, was so grand, that we never had to question our position in his life. He always put us first, and did everything he could to put a smile on our face. I could truly say and mean that he was the best dad in the world. He taught us so much. He taught us that even with rough beginnings, it’s what you create out of them to become a better person. To do better. To help others with no hesitation. To be kind. To spread joy. To be happy with loved ones. That even fighting all your own battles, all that truly matters is being happy and with family with a roof over your head and food in your belly. He worked so hard to take care of his girls. And he was so excited to start all over with my baby sister. And we were so happy he got to do it again and show her what an amazing father that would do anything to protect her and keep her safe could do with his immense love. He loved all his grandchildren the same too. Just like they were his own, and his love for them was like a overflowing flood. His love for us never wavered, and it never emptied. I pray to God now that he has my father, that he aids my dad in the afterlife and allows my dad to keep watch over us as our guardian angel. My two fathers in heaven, my God, and my dad, may keep watch over us 🙏 I love you always and will miss you forever dad. TQM. We’ll make sure baby sister knows you and knows how big your love has always been.

“ Alfredo was more than a partner- he was my safe place, a steady hand, and a source of endless love. He loved doing things himself learning new things, travel and enjoy life but his pride and joy was being a father and at that he was truly remarkable: patient, proud, playful, and full of heart. His greatest joy was his girls he truly loved his big family (our unique blended family). The love he gave will continue to guide us all our lives. We will hold his memory with gratitude, love, and deep respect.

Till we meet again babe

I will always love you with all my QR ❤️
